

Eric Bach- Senior Sales Representative

Eric is a Senior Sales Representative at G&E Industrial Supplies with more than 40 years of experience delivering engineered mechanical solutions across industrial manufacturing facilities, military installations, and healthcare systems. He partners closely with plant operators, facility engineers, and healthcare administrators to provide tailored solutions ranging from critical replacement components to fully integrated turnkey mechanical system installations.

Throughout his career, Eric has developed extensive technical expertise in hydronic systems, steam systems, boiler operations and controls, ancillary equipment, compressed air systems, and vacuum systems. His hands-on experience and deep system knowledge enable him to translate complex operational requirements into practical, cost-effective solutions that support both performance and budget objectives. Clients consistently rely on him as a trusted technical resource capable of aligning engineering requirements with real-world application.

Eric's consultative approach to sales has resulted in long-standing customer relationships built on responsiveness, accountability, and measurable results. His portfolio of work spans industrial plants, military bases, and hospital facilities, where dependable system performance and operational continuity are mission-critical. From initial assessment and system specification through procurement coordination and final installation, he maintains oversight and engagement to ensure seamless execution.

With more than 15 years representing Beacon Medaes medical gas equipment, Eric brings specialized knowledge of healthcare compliance standards governing medical air and medical vacuum systems. His familiarity with regulatory requirements and facility accreditation considerations positions him to support healthcare clients with precision and confidence.

Eric remains focused on delivering reliable, efficient, and compliant mechanical solutions that strengthen long-term client partnerships. His technical depth, operational insight, and customer-first philosophy reinforce G&E Industrial Supplies' commitment to performance excellence and sustained operational success.